THURSDAY, JUNE 22, 1905.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was

3,400 copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

Let it be known that Vermont "stands on its own bottom."

It is Dr. Roosevelt, through act of Clark University yesterday.

Linevitch telegraphs that victory is just at hand. He must refer to a Japanese hand.

And still the governor goes right on attending grange meetings and college commencements.

That erstwhile Vermonter, John Barrett, minister to Colombia, has been made doubly formidable with the conferring on him of the "double dragon" by the Chinese government. Barrett's Vermont friends will not know him.

Little wonder that Governor Bell lost his equanimity on being shown the telegram purporting to come from Lloyd Clark. The telegram was silly in the extreme. Admiral Charles E. Clark's portrait will remain just about as it does now whether Mary Rogers is hanged or not.

POPULATION.

Vermont is growing. It is the New Vermont of course which is increasing the birth rate. If we have gained five or six thousand in population during the past five or six years then we have reason to be proud. If when the next census be taken we count 350,000 souls why not have a grand celebration! It is numbers that we want to help us make a show, and to prove that the New Vermont is on wheels and the axles are kept well greased. The quality does not so much matter, the nationality is of little concern, just give us the count.—Essex County Herald.

In the above quip the contemporary makes light of our modest assertion that, barring Slocum steamboat disasters and Iroquois theatre fires, Vermont's population will have reached the total of 350,000 when the census man makes his rounds five years from now. It is easy to be seen that The Herald deplores an increase in Vermont's population because the "quality" and the "nationality" are not pleasing to its particular standard. The Herald may be right, but we fail to see wherein. To The Times it appears that results attained through the coming of such foreigners as have thus far seen fit to cast their lot in the state have been very satisfactory. The development of potential industries, their reclaiming of farms fallen into disuse through the fading away of the "native stock" and the raising of the standard of labor are three important reasons.

But that is not what we wish to get at. The point is that the protest comes in decidedly bad taste from a section of the state which has gone backward in population so magnificently as has Essex county. For instance, there were five counties in Vermont which showed a decrease in population from 1890 to 1900, and the figures of Essex county showed the greatest falling-off. In the former year it had 9,511; ten years later it had 8,056, a loss of 1,455, of fifteen per cent. At the same rate of decrease there will be, in a little more than fifty years, no Essex county; there will be nothing but a howling wilderness, peopled by woodchucks and well-filled graveyards. If all the fourteen counties of the state had decreased in like proportion, Vermont would now have less than three hundred thousand people, instead of the 343,641 which the most of us are proud to claim through the census of 1900. But happily they did not.

The question is: Would The Herald prefer to have Essex county peopled by men or woodchucks? Would it prefer to hear the hum or industry, or the drone of inactivity? For most people the choice would be easily made. Let the contemporary come in contact with these people who are pouring their strength into the upbuilding of the state, and we dare say that its opinion will be materially changed. Also it might be well to read a little of Roosevelt's "race suicide" opinions.

Why Weaver Declared War.

Mayor John Weaver, who is doing such good work in Philadelphia, is an Englishman who ran away from home and became a seaman when a boy. Landing in Philadelphia when 15 years old, he has lived there ever since. His first work was as an errand boy for John Wamaker; then he became office boy for a firm of lawyers. While in this service he learned stenography. By assiduous labor and self-sacrifice he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1891, and in a few years made the reputation of one of the best trial lawyers in Philadelphia. He once declined an election to the Common Council on the ground that he would not permit a political ward leader to dictate his course as a Councilman. He was chosen District Attorney by the Republican machine, and signalized his term by the prosecution of some Republican repeat-ers. Then he was elected mayor as an honest figurehead for the machine gang.

 His office holding has not been happy, it is said, until he made up his mind to fight. He is a deeply religious man and things came to a pass when he could no longer serve the gang. It is said that he, with his wife and little son, spent the whole night in prayer before he vetoed the new gas lease. His own statement to a correspondent of the Toledo Sun of the motive of his actions is in these words:

"When I entered the fight I made the statement that I could not live with my honor under a cloud; that I would not endure the pressure of any influences to compel me to sacrifice my judgment of right, and that on this cause I would battle for life or death. I meant that literally. It was no mere sacrifice of political ambition, for I have none. I could not look my wife in the face or stand before my son as his model, nor could I traverse the streets of my own city with the shame in my heart that I had betrayed my sacred trust.
 That is why I declared war."

His law partner, Frederick S. Drake, has said that, on the day following the decision to fight, Weaver said to him, as they were journeying together to the city: "Drake, I can no more than die for my honor and for my sacred trust.
 I am going to fight."—Boston Herald.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

INCONSTANCY.

"Why doesn't he come!" the maiden sighed.
 "O love, you are late, you are slow!" But three hours later her fond heart cried,
 "My goodness! Why doesn't he go?"
 —Cleveland Leader.

HE AND SHE.

He led her down the winding lane And slowly 'neath the spreading trees, And from across the fruitful plain Came scents of clover on the breeze; Beside him, with a far-off look,
 She passed where roses, wild and sweet, Were still abloom, and in the brook With glad abandon cooled her feet.

There where the pebbles brightly gleamed She stood and watched him pensively; What time he gazed at her and dreamed Of fame that his some day should be.
 She gave a jerk and he, somehow, Went head first swiftly o'er the brink.
 She was his father's spotted cow And he had led her there to drink.

EQUITABLE REPORT.

Superintendent of New York Insurance Department Recommends.

Albany, N. Y., June 22.—The report of Supt. Francis Hendrick of the state insurance department to Governor Higgins upon his investigation of the Equitable Assurance society, was made public here and in New York last night. It is described in the title as a "preliminary report" and it is decidedly critical of the management of the society, as well as of the new trust arrangement for voting the stock agreed upon by Thomas F. Ryan and the three trustees designated by him. In the conclusion of his report, he says:

"No superficial measures will correct the existing evils in this city. A cancer cannot be cured by treating the symptoms. Complete mutualization, with the elimination of the stock to be paid for at a price only commensurate with its dividends, is in my opinion, the only sure measure of relief."

"This report with a copy of the evidence taken on this investigation will be transmitted to the attorney general for such action thereon as he may deem proper."

Of the subject of proposed legislation, he says:

"I think it important that the next legislature should take into consideration the question of the investment of the funds of life insurance companies and establish a standard of investment.
 As to just how far or to what extent they should be restricted in their investments, I am not prepared to offer an opinion at this time. There can be no question, however, of the wisdom of prohibiting the investment of life insurance companies in subsidiary moneyed and business corporations controlled by life companies which occasion the carrying of large balances for the benefit of those companies and for the stockholders who are largely associated in the management of the society."

ARRESTED ON PERJURY CHARGE.

 Evidence at St. Johnsbury. connection with recent liquor cases and were taken to the Caledonia county jail

John Briggs, president, and David McNaughton, treasurer, of Tool Sharpeners' Union, No. 10, Granite Cutters' National Union, have been called to St.
 Johnsbury to testify in the conspiracy case of State vs. Granite Cutters' National Union, in which the union is charged with unlawfully interfering with sharpening establishments run by individual men.
